Youth Detention Centre OPERATIONAL POLICY

Title: YD-2-1 Youth detention – Admission of a young person

Policy statement:

Youth detention centres will:

- ensure a young person's admission to a youth detention centre is legal
- ensure that it is safe for a young person to be admitted by undertaking risk assessments of the young person's safety and wellbeing
- not admit a young person who is injured, ill or intoxicated unless they have been examined and received appropriate treatment from a medical practitioner and a medical certificate is provided stating the young person is fit to be admitted
- ensure a young person receives an induction to the youth detention centre on admission and that the young person understands their rights and responsibilities as part of this process, and
- keep appropriate records of admission including a register of a young person's property.

Principles:

1. Legality of admission

1.1 A young person must not be admitted to a youth detention centre in the following circumstances:

- if appropriate documentation has not been received
- when a police officer or another agency directly requests an admission, or
- when the admitting officer judges by the appearance of the young person that they are injured, ill, intoxicated or drug affected.

1.2 If any of the above occurs, the admitting officer must advise the escorting police officers that the young person cannot be admitted at this time.¹

2. Risk assessment

Upon admission of a young person, the following risk assessments must take place:

- 2.1 suicide risk assessment
- 2.2 medical assessment
- 2.3 risk assessment to determine what type of search may be required
- 2.4 risk assessment to determine if the young person requires management as a special interest young person
- 2.5 risk assessment to determine whether the young person is suitable to room share with another young person.

¹ If a young person arrives with a medical clearance from a process initiated by the Queensland Police Service, youth detention staff are still able to exercise their right to reject the admission if they are of the view that the young person is still not fit to be admitted. However, if the young person later returns with a medical clearance, the youth detention centre is then obligated to admit them.

3. Induction

- 3.1 The induction process is critical and must be completed no later than one day after admission. It may be delivered in several stages and different staff may complete different parts of the process.
- 3.2 Induction is a priority and, unless exceptional circumstances exist, takes precedence over structured day attendance.
- 3.3 During the induction process, the young person must be advised about:
- why they have been detained
 - how long they will be detained for
 - how they can access legal services during detention
 - cultural and religious support available to them
 - programs and activities available to them
 - the routine of the day
 - rules governing the youth detention centre
 - the types of behaviour that are supported and not supported in the centre
 - the types of behaviour for which a young person may be disciplined
 - their rights and responsibilities
 - the Charter of Youth Justice Principles
 - their avenues for lodging grievances and complaints
 - the obligation of staff to report any harm (including the definition of harm) young people may experience during detention.
- 3.4 As part of this process, staff must read the induction booklet with the young person and ensure they understand its contents.

4. Record keeping

- 4.1 All admissions must be recorded in DCOIS. DCOIS specifically provides dedicated tabs and fields to record details about:
- pre-admission
 - escort
 - admission
 - section induction (uploaded as an attachment).

5. Additional considerations for transgender and intersex young people

- 5.1 As part of the admission process, staff must ask all young people the gender they identify with in accordance with the admission checklist.
- 5.2 Staff must ask a young person who identifies as transgender or intersex to nominate the sex of the staff member they feel most comfortable searching them. This must be done prior to any clothed or partially clothed searches occurring. Refer to policy YD-4-2: Search of a young person for more information.
- 5.3 The young person's preference for the sex of the staff member they feel most comfortable searching them must be documented in writing, formally endorsed by the young person and witnessed by a staff member in a Search preference consent form. Once completed, this form should be scanned and attached to the young person's summary in DCOIS.
- 5.4 If a young person discloses their sexual orientation, gender identity or gender expression, staff should talk with the young person in an open, understanding and non-judgemental manner to determine if the young person has any concerns or needs.
- 5.5 The above information will also inform the young person's accommodation support plan. Refer to Chapter 1, section 1.6 Management of transgender or intersex young people for more information about the accommodation support plan and other case and operational management considerations.

OPERATIONAL POLICY

Title: YD-4-2 Youth detention – Search of a young person

Policy statement

Any search of a young person must be actioned in strict compliance with the requirements of the Youth Justice Regulation 2016.

Accordingly, youth detention centres will ensure:

- search procedures and requirements are explained to young people during the induction process on admission
- searches of young people are undertaken only when reasonable grounds exist for the search
- the safety and wellbeing of young people is paramount and security considerations cannot override or expose the young person to a search type that may be detrimental to their safety or wellbeing
- the reasonable grounds for conducting a search are explained to the young person
- the appropriate search is conducted commensurate to the level of risk assessed
- all searches are approved by a delegated officer authorised to approve that particular search type, prior to the search being conducted
- any search of a young person is conducted as quickly as reasonably possible, with regard to their dignity, privacy and trauma history
- records are created of the search that are compliant with the requirements of the Youth Justice Regulation 2016.

Principles

1. Search types

1.1 Where reasonable grounds exist, a young person may be subject to a:

- 1.1.1 wand search – a search where a young person remains clothed and is searched with a hand-held metal detector or ion scanner (only a young person's hands will come into contact with the ion scanner)
- 1.1.2 clothed search – a search where a young person remains clothed but is requested to remove their shoes and empty and turn-out their pockets, and staff then use a pat-down technique to search the young person
- 1.1.3 partially clothed search – a search of a young person that does not involve touching the young person and searches their upper and lower body, permitting the young person to remain partially clothed (i.e. upper body remains clothed while their lower body is searched and vice versa). Completely unclothed searches of a young person are strictly prohibited.
- 1.1.4 cavity search – a search of a young person that involves the visual, manual or instrument inspection of a young person's body cavities by a medical professional.

1.2 A young person's belongings or any unidentified substance that is found or surrendered during a search may be subject to an ion scan.

2. Mandatory requirements for search process

In seeking to undertake a search of a young person, youth detention operational staff must:

- 2.1 undertake a risk assessment
- 2.2 seek appropriate approval from an authorised officer prior to conducting the search, unless a standing approval applies (refer to section 4 below)
- 2.3 ensure the staff member searching the young person is of the same sex as the young person, unless the young person identifies as transgender or intersex (transgender and intersex young people must be asked to nominate the sex of the staff member that they feel most comfortable searching them¹)
- 2.4 conduct the search in a manner consistent with legislation, this policy and the procedures outlined in chapter four of the Youth Detention Centre Operations Manual
- 2.5 record all searches in DCOIS.

3. Risk assessment to inform search decision

- 3.1 When determining whether a search is required, youth detention operational staff must undertake a risk assessment of the situation and the individual young person to establish a level of risk.
- 3.2 This assessed level of risk will determine if a search should be conducted; and if one is required, the type of search commensurate to the level of risk assessed.
- 3.3 To do this, youth detention operational staff should consider the following:
 - risks associated with the young person such as:
 - previous relevant behaviours including previous incidents in a youth detention centre and offence history
 - current mental health issues which may have an impact on their behaviour
 - history of possession and/or use of restricted, prohibited or illegal articles
 - past or present self-harm or suicide risk
 - SIYP rating and history
 - drug or alcohol history
 - trauma history
 - the possible intended outcome/use of the article they are suspected to be hiding
 - any other risk factor that may be relevant
 - situational factors such as:
 - whether a potential dangerous item has gone missing from a secure area (e.g. a piece of cutlery, tools, writing implement)
 - their current behaviour
 - intelligence that indicates the young person may be in possession of a restricted, prohibited or illegal article
 - movement factors such as whether the young person is:
 - returning from a location within the centre where they may have had access to potentially dangerous items or restricted, prohibited or illegal articles (including visits area, programs and the education precinct)
 - being admitted
 - returning from a leave of absence
 - being transferred from police custody (and if they were searched by the police).
 - any other risk factor that may be relevant.
- 3.4 As part of the risk assessment, the safety and wellbeing of the young person must also be considered and security considerations cannot override or expose the young person to a search type that may be detrimental to their safety or wellbeing. In practice, this means that the behaviour and the victim history of the young person, as well as the immediate situation, must be considered. While the good order and safety of the centre is an appropriate consideration in the risk assessment, further substantiation based on the specific situation is needed for it to be a valid reason for a search.

¹ Refer to section 6 of this policy for more information about transgender or intersex young people.

- 3.5 Once all risk factors have been considered, youth detention operational staff should use their professional judgement to assign a risk level, using the diagram below as a guide.

Level of risk assessed

| No risk | Low risk | High risk | Extreme risk |
|---|---|---|--|
| No search | Pat and/or wand search | Partially clothed search | Cavity search |
| Factors that may lead to a no risk assessment: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> no risk factors associated with the young person no risk factors associated with the situation a young person who is leaving the centre and has no recent history of suicidal ideations and no recent history of possession of restricted or prohibited articles. no SIYP related risks. | Factors that may lead to a low risk assessment: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> a low-risk item (such as a pen lid) going missing from a secure area but with no intel on who might possess it or what happened to it admission with no specific young person risks attendance at tooled or metal work programs low SIYP related risks. | Factors that may lead to a high risk assessment: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> a dangerous item (such as a pen or a compass) going missing from a secure area highly suspicious behaviour from a young person following their access to an area outside of accommodations and following intel of their intent to harm another young person a number of high risks such as specific risks associated with the young person such as a history to possession and a movement risk. To undertake a partially clothed search there must be a risk associated with the young person. | A cavity search can only be authorised if the executive director considers, on reasonable grounds, that: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> the young person is in possession of a thing that may: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> threaten the security or good order of the detention centre, or endanger, or be used to endanger, the young person or another person. |

- 3.6 Ultimately, the decision about the risk level is a matter of professional judgement on a case by case basis. Every situation will be different and the above table is a guide only. Any item (for example, a rock, stick from a tree, broken plastic sleeve of a pen) in the possession of a young person with intent to harm (someone else, themselves or property) could be dangerous. However, staff must record all of the risks identified in the circumstances to justify the decision made about the most appropriate search.

4. Routine searches

- 4.1 Routine searches are part of the centre's standard dynamic and procedural security protocols.
- 4.2 A standing authority is in place approving the use of routine searches in youth detention centres (Standing Authority No. YD/13/01 – Searches authorised for routine security purposes).
- 4.3 Routine searches are to be conducted as necessary to maintain the safety and security of the centre.
- 4.4 Searches required for routine security purposes refer only to:
- clothed pat-down and wand searches of young people in the following circumstances:
 - following a visit
 - following participation in a program before returning to their accommodation unit
 - following access to areas of a detention centre where restricted and/or prohibited articles may be found
 - upon leaving or returning to the centre

- prior to being separated
 - prior to entering a bedroom if the young person is on high suicide prevention observations
 - searches of rooms, areas of the detention centre and vehicles entering and leaving the centre.
- 4.5 All searches must be recorded in DCOIS and include the risk assessment and justification for the search.
- 4.6 If there is a need to conduct an additional search, you must obtain authorisation from the relevant delegated officers. These searches require additional record keeping.
- 4.7 You must obtain separate authorisation from the relevant delegated officer and complete additional record keeping requirements if reasonable force is required to conduct a routine search.

5. Health and safety considerations

- 5.1 When conducting a search, youth detention staff must take due care to protect themselves to minimise exposure to potential risk from infection and concealed articles.
- 5.2 When conducting a search, youth detention staff must:
- use appropriate first aid safety equipment (i.e. gloves)
 - maintain an awareness of their position relative to the young person throughout the duration of the search
 - monitor the young person closely to detect any potential hostile or non-compliant behaviours
 - use safe search practices as outlined in chapter four of the Youth Detention Centre Operations Manual and associated training materials to avoid injuries and infection from concealed articles.

6. Considerations for transgender and intersex young people

- 6.1 Transgender and intersex young people must be asked to nominate the sex of the staff member they feel most comfortable searching them for clothed and partially clothed searches.
- 6.2 The young person's nominated preference must be documented in DCOIS.
- 6.3 Youth detention staff may decline to search a transgender or intersex young person of the opposite sex without being subject to disciplinary action. Reasonable and timely enquiry should be taken to locate an appropriate staff member of the sex requested by the young person.
- 6.4 If a staff member of the requested sex is unavailable or not willing to undertake a search, the young person must be managed in a way that maintains regular observations to ensure the young person's safety, and the safety of the centre and others until such time as a search by an appropriate person can be facilitated. This may mean being placed temporarily in a camera room and/or on behavioural observations.
- 6.5 Youth detention casework staff should continue to have conversations about searches with the young person and ask whether the preference they nominated (for the sex of the youth worker searching them) continues to be their preference.
- 6.6 If a young person changes their mind about their preference (of the sex of the staff member they have nominated to search them) any search about to take place should cease. Any change of preference must be recorded on DCOIS immediately.

7. Reasonable force to conduct a search

- 7.1 The Youth Justice Regulation 2016 permits the use of reasonable force to conduct all search types in instances where a young person fails to cooperate with the conduct of the search.
- 7.2 In instances where a cavity search has been authorised, reasonable force can only be used to conduct the search if the medical practitioner or executive director believes the search cannot be conducted in any other way.
- 7.3 To remove any doubt, use of reasonable force for any search type must only be enacted as an option of last resort.
- 7.4 If a young person is refusing to cooperate with the search, youth detention staff must make reasonable efforts to:
- communicate to the young person why the search must be conducted

- negotiate with the young person to encourage them to cooperate
 - communicate to the young person that force may be used if they fail to cooperate
 - have a second staff member approach the young person to offer to search the young person (rather than the first staff member).
- 7.5 Staff can also consider separating² the young person in a sterile room and placing them under observation.
- 7.6 If after attempting the above steps force is still required, the staff member should discuss the proposed use of force with the shift supervisor, executive director or on call manager and obtain their approval prior to any use of force.
- 7.7 If approved, the youth detention operational staff member who uses force to conduct a search must ensure that the least amount of force necessary is used.
- 7.8 If an immediate decision about the use of reasonable force is required in order to protect a person or property in the centre or to immediately obtain a dangerous item, and the staff member is unable to discuss the use of force with a supervisor beforehand, the staff member may use reasonable force in accordance with policy YD-3-4: Youth detention protective actions continuum.
- 7.9 Any suspected use of unreasonable or unnecessary force will be referred to the department's Professional Standards unit.

8. Record keeping

- 8.1 All searches must be recorded on DCOIS and must include the risk assessment and justification for the search.
- 8.2 For pat and wand searches conducted as part of daily operations (to ensure the safety and security of the centre during young people's movements from programs to accommodation etc.) These searches are to be recorded on the relevant activity log as an occurrence, rather than against an individual young person. If items are found as part of this process, staff must create an ad-hoc search activity record and record: justification; approving officers; searching officers; items found and the young people searched.
- 8.3 Where a pat and/or wand search of a young person is conducted in a program area because there are reasonable grounds that a young person may be in possession of a restricted item missing from that area, staff must record the following on DCOIS: search type; justification; approving officers of search conducted; and what item(s), if any, were found.
- 8.4 For partially clothed searches the shift supervisor must:
- create an ad-hoc young person search record in the relevant log
 - detail the risk assessment and justification for the search and any special instructions.
- 8.5 All cavity searches, including risk assessment and justification, must be recorded in the cavity search register on DCOIS.
- 8.6 Staff must follow the additional guidance noted in chapter four of the Youth Detention Centre Operations Manual in relation to record keeping for searches of young people.

Objectives

The department has a legislative responsibility to ensure that youth detention centres are safe and secure environments.

Searches are a risk reduction strategy that assist in the elimination and control items in a youth detention environment that have the potential to cause harm to people and/or property. Searches also contribute to the security management of a youth detention centre.

Accordingly, this policy identifies the types of searches that can be conducted of a young person in youth detention and regulates the way that searches are to be conducted.

² In accordance with Policy YD3-8: Use of separation in response to an incident.

Scope

This policy applies to young people sentenced or remanded in a youth detention centres.

This policy is part of a suite of policies and processes developed to support the safe and secure operations of youth detention centres and is to be read in conjunction with:

- Policy YD-2-1: Admission of a young person
- Policy YD-4-1: Management of restricted and prohibited articles
- Policy YD-4-4: Retention and disposal of evidence relevant to an incident
- Chapter 4: Security Management, Youth Detention Centre Operations Manual.

Roles and responsibilities

- Unit manager and shift supervisor:
 - Use professional judgement to assess the level of risk that exists to determine whether reasonable grounds exist for a young person to be searched
 - demonstrate a duty of care to any young person who is searched, ensuring the search is recorded on DCOIS.
- Executive director:
 - ensure practice complies with this policy, determining whether reasonable grounds exist to authorise a cavity search by a medical practitioner, ensuring that any medical practitioner required to do a cavity search on a young person understands their responsibilities under section 26 of the Youth Justice Regulation 2016
 - train new youth detention operational staff during their induction to ensure understanding of their responsibilities in accordance with this policy, and on appropriate wand, clothed and partially clothed search techniques.
- Director, Youth Justice Practice:
 - review and update the induction booklet as required
 - provide practice support and advice to youth detention staff and youth detention management about issues relating to compliance with this policy, and
 - review and update this policy as required.
- Director, Capability and Learning:
 - review and update training materials as required.

DIRECTIVE

| Author: | Glen Knights |
| Position title: | Executive Director |
| Workgroup: | Brisbane Youth Detention Centre |
| To: | All BYDC Operational Staff |
| Subject: | Partially Clothed Searches |
| Date: | 27 th August 2015 |

On at least 4 occasions recently, the approved practice when carrying out a partially clothed search has not been followed, leading to a complaint and subsequent referral to the Ethical Standards Unit for investigation. The breach involved a number of YP being fully unclothed during the search procedure undertaken by staff, and this is inconsistent with Policy: Search of a Young Person YD-4-2 which states:

A partially clothed search is a search of a young person that does not involve touching the young person and searches their upper and lower body, permitting the young person to remain partially clothed (i.e. upper body remains clothed while their lower body is searched and vice versa). The search must never be conducted in a manner than involves the removal of all of the young person's clothing at the same time

- Staff are not permitted to touch the young person.
- At least two staff members must be present during the search.
- The staff member conducting the search must be the same gender as the young person.
- The second staff member must stand where they can directly observe the staff member. If they are the opposite gender of the young person, they must be able to directly observe the staff member but not the young person.

I direct that all staff approving a partially unclothed search, all staff acting as the observer, and all staff conducting such searches immediately cease or ensure cessation of any practice that is not consistent with the above policy requirements; the full version of which is attached for your review.

Subject: Partially unclothed searches

Good morning,

This is another reminder to all operational staff about the change of practice to partially unclothed searches.

Please see below a directive to cease the practice of asking young people to squat, lift breasts or lift genitalia during the partially unclothed search procedure.

This practice is no longer authorised and must cease immediately.

Please do not hesitate to contact a member of the management team if you require any further clarification.

Kind regards,

Michael Drane | A/Executive Director
Brisbane Youth Detention Centre | Youth Justice
Department of Justice and Attorney-General <<http://www.justice.qld.gov.au/>>
T: 07 3271 0700 s78B(2)(c)

As you are aware, the department has specific requirements about how to conduct partially clothed searches of young people in youth detention centres, in accordance with legislative obligations under the Youth Justice Act 1992 and the Youth Justice Regulation 2003.

These practices must be based on an individual risk assessment of the young person and the situation to determine whether a partially clothed search is required to protect the safety and security of young people, staff and visitors to the centre. Partially clothed searches should only be used where no reasonable alternative exists.

The safety and wellbeing of the young person is paramount when determining whether a partially clothed search is required, and security considerations cannot override or expose the young person to a search type that may be detrimental to their safety and wellbeing. Importantly, consideration must be given to the wellbeing and personal experiences of the young person when determining the necessity of conducting a partially clothed search, including any potential trauma they may have experienced.

In this context, the option of asking a young person to squat or lift their breasts or genitals as part of the process for conducting a partially clothed search is no longer authorised. This has the potential to contribute to the trauma experienced by young people with histories of abuse. While partially clothed searches may still occur if required and approved, this change to practice will be effective immediately as of the date of this email. However, please note that changes to the Youth Detention Centre Operations Manual and relevant policies will need to occur over the next few weeks to reflect this change in practice.

The removal of this practice should not impact significantly on the safety and security of the youth detention centres, as only a nominal amount of prohibited items are recovered through this practice. However, clothed, wand and partially clothed searches (as required) should continue to be effective in locating prohibited items, in addition to observations of young people.

I thank you in advance for your assistance in implementing this practice change immediately within the youth detention centres.

Regards
